

Other ways to promote immunizations as preventive care at your company during the month of August:

Use posters, screensavers and flyers around campus to encourage our colleagues to:

- Check annually with their physician to determine if they need an immunization
- Check with employee health nurses to determine what immunizations may be available at your worksite
- Call community health clinics and local health departments – they often offer immunizations free of charge

Have employee health staff discuss the importance of immunizations and which ones are appropriate for different life stages during an educational event or lunch and learn.
